

Me and My World - Get Outside!

William Hogarth was an artist who lived 300 years ago.

Hogarth had a pug dog as his pet. He named him Trump!

Trump loved to spend time outside because it made him happy.

Trump wants to go outside with you!

Your turn!

We use our eyes, ears, nose and bodies to understand the world around us. Why not keep a nature diary in a notebook or on a piece of paper?

Before we go out, Trump wants to know how you are feeling today. Think about it. Why do you feel this way?

Eyes

Trump would have seen a big mulberry tree in his garden.

Draw the trees you see in your diary. Can you label their parts?

Ears

Trump's ears might have risen to hear a bird or a buzzing bee.

Close your eyes. Count how many creatures you hear.

Nose

Sniff sniff! Trump had a nose that was very good at smelling things.

What can you smell? Draw what you think it comes from.

Body

Trump would have felt the warm sun on his fur in the summer.

What's the weather like today? How does it make you feel?

Challenge! Add to your diary every day. What changes? Ask an adult to tell us on social media using #HogarthAtHome
